THREE HELD IN $500 BAIL

Woman and Two Men Arrested in Broadway Office After Complaint Was Made to District Attorney.

Zenith E. Cline, Julie A. Harrigan and Tobias W. Stapleton, charged with exacting more than the legal rate of interest on loans, were held in $500 bail yesterday by Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs court for examination on Thursday, when Walter R. Deuel, Assistant District Attorney, will seek to show that the three had a novel scheme to beat the usury law.

Cline is a loan broker and lives at No. 107 Avenue G, Brooklyn. Miss Harrigan is a clerk in his office at No. 108 Broadway.

Stapleton described himself as a broker, living at No. 104 East 19th street, Brooklyn. The three were arrested yesterday by Detectives Clare and Brown on the complaint of Walter Joseph Goodey, of No. 211 East 133rd street, Manhattan.

Goodey says that last April he called at the office of one George Gardner, at No. 108 Broadway, to get a loan of $17. Miss Harrigan, he asserts, gave him an application blank, which, when he had filled it out, she gave to Cline. Two days later Goodey got a letter informing him his application had been approved and directing him to call at No. 108 Broadway.

Goodey says he called again at the Broadway address and again saw Cline and Miss Harrigan. They told him, he says, that although his application had been approved the loan could not be made on his salary as security, as they could lend money only on collateral such as certificates of stock. He was directed, he declares to go to Brenton & Co., brokers, at No. 71 Nassau street.

At that address, Goodey says, he introduced himself as one who had applied to Mr. Cline for a loan and had been referred to the Brenton office. He met Stapleton there, he maintains, and told him Cline sent him to get some collateral for a loan.

Stapleton, he alleges, sold him two shares of the capital stock of the International Steam Pump Company for $24. Goodey was to pay for the stock at the rate of $2 a week. Back went Goodey, elated by his sudden success as a financier, to Cline. Cline, according to Goodey, loaned him $17, taking the two shares of stock as collateral, the understanding being that if Goodey found it possible he could redeem the stock for $17 within ten days.

After thinking the matter over for some time Goodey looked up the stock which he had purchased for collateral and found, he says, that at the time he bought it, it was listed at 10% a share and had no buyers. It then dawned on him that the stock for which he was to pay $2 and get in return a loan of $17, could have been bought for $2, was worth that much to any one who had it. Then he went to the District Attorney.
